

Dear Friend,

Thank you for your interest in the work of Center for Arizona Policy (CAP). We see the importance of training the next generation to be the voice for life, marriage and family, and religious liberty in the future. Toward that mark, we created our Legislative Internship Program that debuted in the spring 2004.

The program provides students the opportunity to gain first-hand experience in nonprofit government relations and participate in the daily operations of a policy organization. Interns will become familiar with the intricacies of the Arizona legislative process and the philosophy behind and methodology of implementing pro-family public policies by working side-by-side with CAP's policy staff.

Spring interns will experience the legislative process as we work at the state legislature every week to promote family-friendly policy. Summer interns may experience some of the legislative process (depending on how long the legislative session continues into the summer), but will mostly be involved in research and legislative wrap-up projects. Fall interns are heavily involved in Voter Guide projects, legislative and policy research, and church relations projects.

The program is open to college undergraduates and graduate students. We are looking for individuals who have a basic understanding of the legislative process, computer competency, and strong written, oral, and research skills. Interns must agree with CAP's Statement of Faith.

If you are interested in applying, send a résumé, two letters of recommendation, a college transcript, and two essays by mail or email to:
